

Geography Biography

My name is Miss Baird and I am the Geography Lead at Oakhill and Hanbury's Farm Federation.

Geography has always been a passion of mine. My family have always had a love for the outdoors so from an early age, nature and the world has been a part of life. It was also my dad, who worked for the Environment Agency working on rivers, that sparked my love and fascination of the many wonders of the world.

At school, Geography was my favourite subject and from studying it at GCSE and A-level, my love for the subject only grew and so did my awe of the world. I was provided with many opportunities to witness first hand some of the amazing features of our country. I was also fortunate to travel abroad to Iceland and see many of the amazing features of its landscape – it was an experience of a life time! From walking on a glacier and swimming in the Blue Lagoon to going down a lava tube and watching geysers erupt every 10 minutes!

These experiences have given me a lifelong love of geography and I hope our Geography curriculum at Oakhill and Hanbury's Farm Primary School will inspire and spark a fascination in geography that I had from an early age.
